Students Delight Seniors at Breakfast

By Jean Perry

Emily Dickinson, Dr. Seuss, Clara Barton, and Benjamin Franklin all walk into a cafeteria...

It may sound like the beginning to a joke, but it really happened the morning of June 6 during the Center School's Senior Appreciation Breakfast.

Third-graders dressed up as historical Massachusetts figures and sang songs for the seniors as they had a breakfast of bagels, pastries, and donuts. The students then introduced themselves individually to the guests and stated a few facts about the person they were portraying.

Benjamin Franklin was well-represented by several students, as well as Emily Dickinson, the poet from Amherst, Clara Barton who founded the American who won last week's Facebook Fun Friday!

This week we'll have a Gift Card to Dunkin' Donuts

Red Cross, and Theodor Seuss Geisel, also known as Dr. Seuss.

"It is such an honor to have you here at the Center School," Principal Rose Bowman told the guests from the Council on Aging.

Bowman stated earlier that the breakfast was just one way to show the seniors the school's appreciation for all they do for the school.

"We know we wouldn't have these wonderful facilities without them," said Bowman. "We'll never forget what [they] did for us."

After singing several songs including "This Land is Your Land" and "My Country 'tis of Thee," the students left the stage to mingle with the guests, introducing themselves in character and talking about their life stories.

One of the Benjamin Franklins, Torsten Brickly, told one guest, "I signed the Declaration of Independence!"

Another Ben Franklin said, "I invented the lightning rod."

Jack Butler, one of the students portraying Dr. Seuss, had a long list of memorized facts about Seuss that he flew through while introducing himself.

"They did awesome," said Bowman. "They're wonderful. And they really care," she added. "To have the two generations joined together is a symbol of how special Mattapoissett really is."

One guest, Leo Lamontagne, approached Bowman saying, "Well, I've had my cry for the day."

When asked how well the students performed, Lamontagne replied, "It was just wonderful. They were right on target."

ORRHS Celebrates 52nd Graduating Class

ORR Update

By Renae Reints

On the sunny afternoon of Saturday, June 7, the graduating students of Old Rochester Regional High School's class of 2014 formed a circle on the football field. Senior class president Zachary Bowen counted to three, and then 162 tasseled caps flew through the air. The red and white specks landed amongst cheers.

The seniors enjoyed an entire week of exciting events before this final significant moment. Monday, June 2, was the senior class trip to Six Flags. Two days later the students showed off their beautiful gowns and dapper suits at promenade before heading to the senior prom at the Indian Pond Count Club in Kingston, MA.

These fun festivities turned into more ceremonial celebrations as the week wore on. Thursday, June 5, was senior awards night, followed by the senior assembly the next morning. The week was rounded off with graduation on June 7.

Thursday's awards night – held in the high school gymnasium – honored students successful in academics, athletics, and art. Certificates of excellence were awarded to the student with the highest average in each class. Each department also had their own awards. Recipients of these department awards received a plaque and a small medal to wear over their graduation gown.

In the Classical and Modern Languages Department, John Hewitt won the French award, Brianna Perry won the Latin award, and Kaitlyn Sethares won the Spanish award. John Hewitt also won the department award for English Language Arts, and Kaitlyn Sethares also won the department award for Mathematics. The History and Social Science department award went to Emily Audet. The Science, Technology, and Engineering department award went to Nicolas Iacovelli. The Physical Education department awards went to Michaela Bouvette and Paul Graves. In the Unified Arts Department, Mia Traenkle won for Art, Keren Satkin won for Band, Justin Smilan won for Chorus, and Kylie Fitzgerald and Evelyn Murdock each won for Family and Consumer Science. The Athletic Department gave out various awards presented to Paige Santos, Samantha Barrett, Chris Carando, Robert Magee, Emily Beaulieu, Jesse Noonan, Isabelle Riley, and Samantha Allaire. A few departments gave additional awards for students of further excellence.

Mary Cabral, advisor of the Community Service Learning club, presented Presidential Volunteer Service Awards to students who earned them through hours of community service. Bronze awards were given to Emily Hyde and Robert Magee for each completing over 100 hours of service. Gold awards were given to Arissa Underhill and Haakon Perkins for each completing over 250 hours of service.

The night continued with the AFS recognition awards and Drama Club awards. Emily Audet received the Joan Walsh Book Award and Samantha Barrett received Student Council's Unsung Hero Award. The Carol A. E. Stigh Lighthouse Award went to Kella Mendes.

Members of the National Honor Society received their gold chords to wear at graduation, and then the top ten scholars of the class received their certificates and medals. Renae Reints and Nicolas Iacovelli tied for tenth in the class. Ninth went to Emily Audet, followed by Ruhi Raje, Brianna Perry, Justin Smilan, Jessica Belliveau, Michael Wyman, John Hewitt, and Kaitlyn Sethares. The Class of 2014's valedictorian was announced as Leah Thomas.

Brianna Perry was recognized for receiving the Charles E. Winterhalter Memorial Ronald McDonald House Charities scholarship. Emily Hyde and Makenzie Despres were awarded the Marion Firefighters Association scholarships. Every scholarship recipient was recognized; a full listing of these recipients can be found on the high school's website.

The assistant principal's award went to Brittany Hotte and the Superintendent's Award went to Justin Smilan. Principal Michael Devoll gave out various awards presented to Samantha Allaire, Samantha Barrett, Kelly Merlo, Douglas Blais, and Kaitlyn Sethares. He also commended John Hewitt, Rebecca Koerner, Kaitlyn Sethares, Justin Smilan, and Leah Thomas for participating in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

Friday morning's senior assembly was a more lively celebration of the seniors' accomplishments. Held during second period in the high school's gymnasium, the whole school as well as family and friends were in attendance.

The assembly started with the singing of the national anthem by senior chorus members. Next, Class Secretary Brianna Perry spoke on the class's history. From creating their first fantastic homecoming skit freshman year to dealing with the fact their original prom venue burned down senior year, the class of 2014 has had an interesting and successful four years. Perry captured the class's unique personality as she spoke, recognizing every accomplishment from the debate team to the football team.

To show the class's unique talents, the assembly contained intermittent musical performances by members of the senior class. Troy Rood, Elizabeth Machado, and Justin Smilan each sang. The Jazz Combo, including seniors Matthew Pereira and Jared Tyndall, performed a song. The audience also enjoyed the chorus' singing of "Spiderman" and later the concert band's playing of "Foundry" by John Mackey.

Between these musical performances were heartwarming speeches that captured the year's events and said goodbye to the seniors. Foreign exchange students Louisa Truss from Germany and Ailina Cervantes Diaz from Costa Rica spoke about their transforming time in the United States. Their speeches were followed by a slide show the two had created using pictures of their experiences with their new family at ORR.

Junior class president Michael Kassabian had the audience laughing with his goodbye speech for the seniors. He recalled the "struggles" the class of 2014 had to face over the years – everything from dealing with the new student drop off route to losing and then regaining chocolate milk in the cafeteria. Kassabian quoted both

Drake and Rosa Parks, managing to blend humor and heart into a wonderful speech.

The senior assembly is not only a time for the school to say goodbye to the seniors; it's a time for the seniors to thank those who have helped get them so far. The senior class officers – President Zachary Bowen, Vice President Callie Gomes, Secretary Brianna Perry, and Treasurer Amanda Carreiro – presented gifts to the class's advisors, Merrideth Wickman and Michael Nailor. Senior Zachery Tilden spoke about the senior class's gift to the school: benches in memory of Dana Dourdeville. The benches can be found at the memorial by the school's track.

The assembly was concluded with the senior video created by Samantha Barrett. Throughout the year, Barrett collected interviews, video, and photos to blend into a montage of the class of 2014. The video had students smiling and laughing upon seeing old photos and footage of their classmates. It brilliantly captured the class's personality and heart.

Finally, Saturday – the big day – arrived. With the sun shining hot, the graduation ceremony was held on the school's football field at noon. The graduating seniors walked formally to their seats to the tune of "Fanfare and Processional" by Edward Elgar, performed by the high school concert band. Once seated, the national anthem was again sung by senior chorus members Makenzie Despres, Nicole Enos, Troy Rood, Paige Santos, and Justin Smilan.

Senior Class President Zachary Bowen held a moment of silence and then welcomed the friends and families in the crowded bleachers before passing the microphone to Superintendent Douglas White, Jr. White spoke about how the students' generation has become a generation of technology. With this technology comes the availability of information, and thus the requirement for maturity, he said, providing advice to the graduating students.

Principal Michael Devoll took the stand next, speaking about his time at ORR and his realization of the school's value. "We have never graduated such a strong class," he said, mentioning the class of 2014's success regarding academics, athletics, debate, and community service. With that, Devoll passed the microphone to eighteen graduating students so that they may speak for themselves on their accomplishments.

The students who spoke – Keren Satkin, Nathan Resendes, Morgan DaSilva, Nicholas Bergstein, Kella Mendes, Chad Santello, Isabelle Riley, Mitchel Geldmacher, Arissa Underhill, Christopher Helmar, Curran Desjardins, Haakon Perkins, Morgan Collings, Jacob Machnik, Talon Gomes, Jack Smith, Kelly Merlo, and John Hewitt – spoke honestly about their high school experience. They mentioned their pride in becoming sports captains, participating in a wonderful music program, getting involved in the school and community, and creating fantastic homecoming skits.

DaSilva mentioned her undefeated track team, which won all eight SCC championships throughout her four years. Riley was on the girls' lacrosse team the first year it was started, and this year, they made it all the way to states. Collings thanked the teachers for their support, while Perkins recalled his valuable time volunteering in the special education classroom. Many of the students were simply proud of the friends they've made, the memories collected, and the diploma soon to be in their hands. Hewitt, the last to speak, left his classmates with some advice. Follow your interests, he said, because they are what make you unique.

With the conclusion of these speeches, Devoll passed the microphone to Jessica Belliveau, Vice President of the National Honor Society. Belliveau introduced her friend and classmate, a caring person and lover of Jeopardy: Leah Thomas, the valedictorian.

Thomas' speech was one of memories made and goals achieved. She encouraged her peers to be proud of their accomplishments, reminding them that although it has become an expectation, graduating high school is a big deal. Throughout her speech, Thomas gave her classmates valuable advice. She reminded them to take every opportunity. As a resident of Middleboro, Thomas took the opportunity to become a school choice student at ORR. Now she's ORR's first ever school choice valedictorian. Thomas encouraged her peers to appreciate the good times, get involved in the community around you and make memories. As her last piece of advice, Thomas reminded her classmates to always show their gratitude. Sticking to her word, Thomas thanked those who had influenced and supported her over the years: teachers, family, and friends.

After a performance by the high school band, the graduates finally reached the moment they'd been waiting for – the presentation of diplomas. As Vice Principal Michael Parker read off their names, the graduating students proudly walked to the front of the field. They shook hands with Principal Devoll, School Committee Chairman James O'Brien, and Superintendent White, received their diploma, and again took their seat among

Jay Gould, DVM

BECOMING A VETERINARIAN

My daughter wants to be a veterinarian. I have not been encouraging her as it seems to be a profession dominated by men.

Actually 2 out of 3 veterinary students are female. By all means, encourage her.

What kind of education is required to become a veterinarian?

Generally speaking, 4 years of college followed by 4 years of vet school. A graduate can then enter practice or, if they wish to specialize, perform an internship and residency.

their peers.

Finally, Principal Devoll presented the class of 2014, and one hundred sixty-two caps flew into the air. The 52nd class of Old Rochester Regional High School had graduated.

Sippican School Students Go Wild

By Jean Perry

Sippican School was a virtual zoo on the morning of June 5, with fourth-grade "animals" crawling all over the multi-purpose room while the other grades were treated to a virtual safari through the different habitats around the world.

Students greeted classmates and family members while dressed in costumes portraying an animal about which they had selected to learn, or as zoologists knowledgeable in the habitat they studied as part of a cross-curriculum project that encompasses science, technology, reading, and geography, among other subjects.

Fourth-grade teacher Nicole Radke said the students have been researching their selected animal for about five weeks, learning about characteristics, adaptations, habitat, and life cycle in preparation for the two-day Sippican zoo event.

"The kids did it all themselves, with support from their parents at home and it's been great," said Radke. "So they can feel proud that it's their own work."

Students did all their own online research, created poster boards, and wrote reports on all sorts of different species of insects, spiders, mammals, reptiles, marsupials, and more. Each student also gave a presentation on their animal in front of their class.

"They have been so dedicated and enthusiastic," said Radke, "even though it was scheduled for the last part of the year."

Lines of students from different grades snaked up and down the aisles, stopping along the way to engage and interact with one of the animals or zoologists. The students knew their stuff and answered questions while providing a myriad of facts about their chosen creatures.

There were big cats, snakes, a koala, a flamingo, a whale, and even an anteater. Just about every animal one could think of, and a few perhaps one has never heard of, were represented at the zoo.

"We couldn't be more proud, honestly," said Radke, speaking on behalf of Kim Souza, Courtney Sheehan, and Mary Jane Menezes, the other three fourth-grade teachers.

This was the second year the Sippican School hosted a fourth-grade zoo, and hopefully, today's third-graders will get their turn to go wild next year.

One Small Story

This Mattapoisett Life

By Marilou Newell

He died three years ago this May. He never spoke a single word about his experience on the beach at Normandy or any aspect of his military service during my youth. What little we do know was shared with us after he sustained a massive head injury from falling down stairs in his own home at the age of 80 something.

One day, while sitting in his tiny kitchen, his mind wandered and he began to mention anecdotal details of being in WWII. I asked him what it sounded like as they landed in Normandy. I expected him to say deafening. What he said was, "boys were falling in the water all around us ... it sounded like ping, ping, ping..." The sound of bullets hitting the metal boats. His eyes looked through me, through walls, through the years back to that day.

He received a Bronze Star. I tried to get details. Dealing with the military bureaucracy is quite nearly an exercise in futility, and nearly impossible for Dad's history. All records for his unit were lost in a massive fire of military records somewhere in Oklahoma. We do have his Bronze Star and a few strands of information and that is all.

During his wake, as friends and family milled around the funeral home, a professional colleague of mine was looking at the display of Dad's military metals. He turned to me and said, "Your father was a hero, Marilou." My response was one of face saving. I said, "Oh, yes, he was." But at that moment, I didn't know, I was not informed, I felt sad and sick by my ignorance. I felt shame.

Dad played his part in WWII as he was supposed to. His work, his efforts, his small but important part were never ever discussed. Not unusual I'm made to understand by people from that era. Yet, tears of pride and sadness mix when I think of what that experience must have been like for him, when I ponder it all today. I placed an arrangement of silk flowers at his grave on Memorial Day weekend. There is a foot marker courtesy of a veteran's organization noting his Bronze Star status and recently one placed for my Mother as well. I look at those markers and wonder how two people who lived together for 70 years could have been so far apart.

I have a hard time forgiving my Mother for her unmerciful crucifying of my Father. She said on many occasions that he was a coward because he had hidden under his overturned Jeep for days way back when, rather than fight his way out.

His brother told me, before his own death, that Dad had suffered "battle fatigue" when he returned home from the war. The brothers had talked apparently. It relieves my mind to know my Father was at least able to talk to his only sibling about whatever he was going through. His brother, a career Naval officer, would understand and I'm sure that's what gave my Father the comfort level to reveal himself in this manner. He didn't do so with anyone else.

What little I understand is that Dad was the driver for a commander of some sort, and the two of them had been attacked while driving away from Normandy and deeper into France on their way to help liberate the country. They became separated from their unit. How his Jeep overturned, I don't know. They were attacked by the Germans, that much was said. So he and his commander took refuge under the vehicle and protected themselves from harm for several days in the cold and the wet and the uncertainty. I think that every soldier in every branch of every military service is charged with the responsibility of taking care of themselves so that they can fight for their country for the cause at hand. To that end, Dad fulfilled his duty. They eventually were able to continue forward.

Very late in his life, as the jigsaw pieces of his memory coupled and uncoupled in our conversations, he told me that story of being alone with his commanding officer trying to re-establish contact with their unit. His job was to get this officer to a specific location, safely. He did that job while stealthily moving through the French countryside trying to avoid the retreating Germans. The rest is my imagination.

I was born in 1951. He would have been home less than six years from that war. He was home and he was struggling. I grew up with a Father whose silent presence marks my own history. The in-home accident he sustained many decades later, akin to a car crash, resulted in permanent frontal lobe injury and personality changes. He was social, friendly, eager for company and to please others, and he longed for love. We spent many hours together in happy companionship. Those last years of his life I cherish for the closeness we shared.

As the country once again remembers its soldiers and their sacrifices both seen and unseen, I remember Dad. I remember a man who kept his personal narrative to himself because to speak of it was tantamount to conceit. He was not a perfect man, husband, or father; he simply put on his yoke each day and took care of business as best he could. He kept his own counsel until the head injury unleashed his tongue and still of WWII he barely spoke at all.

Dad is one of thousands who, with quiet dignity, returned home to blend back into the fabric of American life and pick-up where they left off before the war. Today, with all the publicity given soldiers and veterans we understand just how hard the old guard had it because modern conversation translates that unspoken history – Dad's history and all the other 'boys' and of course, women.

When the Iraq War began, Dad cried. He said war was stupid. He said people shouldn't kill other people, and he said Bush didn't know what he was doing. That it was all wrong. He was outraged and saddened. He stopped watching the news on TV. He understood from his own experience what war truly is – a brutal, evil hell on earth.

As I placed that basket of flowers, cleaned the footstones of my parents' fresh graves, and heard again snatches of bygone conversation, condemnations and confidences, I mourn them, but I don't miss them. I miss the rare precious laughter, I miss the opportunity to do little special things for them that they enjoyed, and I miss what I never knew – my Father's story.

My parents' tempestuous and very long marriage has shadowed my life. They didn't know any better. As contemporary people, they might have gone into marriage counseling or gotten a divorce. Maybe if Dad had received mental health services in 1945, if, if, if... we the living go on with our hearts and minds full of the 'what ifs' and longing to understand the why, and then ultimately accepting and letting go slowly with gratitude and love.

Take a Hike!

By Jean Perry

The woods of Rochester really set themselves apart from the rest of Tri-Town. Although the Tri-Town area as a whole is blessed with miles of conservation land trails that border the ocean, fields, and ponds, the woods of Rochester just have that je ne sais quoi – a certain charm, a pleasant vibration that is palpable – a kindness about them.

We came back to Rochester after a few satisfying hikes in all three towns, and it felt good to be back – like visiting a new "old" friend. A walk through the woods of Rochester is better than therapy, my friends.

Within the boundaries of the Delano Memorial Forest there is magic. This woodland has a consciousness, a personality. You can feel its gratitude when a visitor comes to meander through its trails. I felt at home here, I felt welcome. It is a friendly wood.

The tall, slender pines towered over little me, swaying and scraping the sky as I wound my way along the two-mile loop. The trees whispered in the wind, and I found myself stopping every so often to listen to their sighs and look up to where they were pointing.

Each hilly bend before me, every dip and turn along the way kept my mind completely in the moment – wondering what was coming next and forgetting about the world outside the wood.

The trail loop would make a great running path, with very few roots reaching out to trip up your step. A run through the woods can be just as invigorating as a rigorous hike, but the Delano Memorial Forest had me slowing down for my senses to take in everything around me. My feet on the earth below, the feathers and little creatures I passed along the way, the birds and wild turkeys that brought me to a standstill.

Some short, beckoning side trails lead to the riverside, "Sarah's Rock," and a memorial stone placed in memory of Stephen Delano, reminding everyone "This was his woodland."

Almost halfway in, the trail forks and, knowing that the left trail would end abruptly at one point according to the Rochester Land Trust trail guide, my curiosity, which always triumphs, made me follow it anyway and I was glad I did. It was like I had stumbled into the baby pine nursery, with young pine saplings lining the straight narrow path that opened up to a reddening cranberry bog.

I had to retrace my steps back to the loop trail, but it was my pleasure to re-experience the path all over again from the opposite direction.

Along the last leg of the loop, I eventually noticed I was walking along a primitive ancient stone wall overtaken by time and buried in a mossy grave. The leaves of centuries of autumns have it almost completely covered, except for a single obelisk-like rock with a forgotten purpose reaching up from the past and speaking to my sense of wonder.

Who put you there, and what for? Why are you there, I wondered? Was I following an old stagecoach road, the stone wall on either side swallowed up beneath the layers of time?

The Delano Memorial Forest is as mysterious as it is enchanting. From the slender, intimate paths to the widening cart paths of the past, this woodland is a gem in every sense of the word.

The trailhead begins on Mary's Pond Road, marked by wooden posts and a sign. There is parking off the side of the road and, contrary to the Rochester Land Trust map, the trail does indeed loop all the way around from start to finish. The loop took me about an hour, and I enjoyed each and every one of those 60 minutes

Seeking Citizen Scientists for Barn Swallow Study By Jean Perry

The aerial acrobatics of swallows in flight is a welcome sight in springtime for those concerned about the declining population of barn swallows.

Climate change, the use of pesticides, and even house sparrows are threatening the "common" barn swallow, as numbers have steadily declined. The Mass Audubon "State of the Birds" has identified barn swallows as rapidly decreasing in number, and the decline is widespread. Barn swallows have been added to Canada's list of endangered species.

As part of the "Big Barn Study," the Mass Audubon Society is seeking the help of Tri-Town residents who would act as citizen scientists in a Barn Swallow counting to find out how many there are, where they are breeding, and which sites they may have abandoned.

All one would have to do is pick a spot and visit it three times before June 30, the end of the mating season, and then enter the data on the Big Barn Study data reporting website.

Barn swallows usually build their nests on manmade structures like barns, bridges, and overpasses, and there are three criteria for choosing a location. The structure must be at least six feet tall, have a large opening that is never sealed such as a barn door or loft, and the bridge or overpass must be large enough to span at least one lane. Empty barns and overpasses where swallows are absent is also valuable information that can be reported to Mass Audubon.

If you encounter a swallow nest and you are not sure if it is inhabited, look for some telltale signs such as bird droppings on the ground (swallows are very clean birds that do not defecate in their nests). There are two swallows to a nest, and a mirror at the end of a retractable pole is a great way to peek inside a nest that is out of reach.

How can you tell if what you spot is indeed a barn swallow? Barn swallow tails are long and forked, and the wings are long and narrow with a distinct point. They are entirely iridescent blue above, and white, buffy, or pale orange underneath.

While tracking the swallows, be on the lookout for house sparrows, an invasive, aggressive species of sparrow not native to North America. These common brown birds often evict other birds, including swallows, from their nests and take them over, sometimes attacking or killing them.

Lauren Miller-Donnelly of Mass Audubon said she once saw a house sparrow nest constructed out of the dead carcass of a blue bird, and she advocates getting rid of the European species whenever possible.

"House sparrows are not protected under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act," said Miller-Donnelly. "Whenever I can I will 'eliminate' them from the population." One way of repelling house sparrows, added Miller-Donnelly, is to hang strips of Mylar or "anything shiny that could blow in the wind."

Swallows migrate to South America every fall, making them long-distance migratory insectivores, which means they feed solely on insects, catching their prey in mid-flight.

They generally nest in areas near meadows and ponds where they can be seen catching insects on the wing and swooping low over the water's surface to drink and bathe while flying. They are agile, swift flyers.

Selectmen to Discuss Budgets With ORR

Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen

By Marilou Newell

During his report to the Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen on June 10, Town Administrator Michael Gagne discussed the upcoming Tri-Town Selectmen's Meeting scheduled for June 19 at 7:00 pm in ORRHS. Gagne said that he recently had conversations with Superintendent Doug White regarding the prudent use of excess and deficiency funds rather than for operating expenses and had been encouraged that things were moving in the right direction. He said that the Tri-Town selectmen's involvement moving forward with ORR financial matters would be beneficial. White indicated to Gagne that he is looking to put together a reserve fund for unforeseen emergencies and capitol planning building needs. Gagne also said that the town's investment firm, Bartholomew and Company (located in Worcester), had offered to assist the school department with OPEB planning.

Gagne also asked the board to vote on the appointment of Jill Simmons as reserve police officer on the waterfront and F. Mitchell Suzan as special reserve officer for details only.

Elsewhere on the agenda the board reorganized, voting Tyler Macallister as Clerk, Jordan Collyer as Vice Chairman, and Paul Silva as Chairman.

Michael King came before the board requesting permission to discuss his farming enterprise with the Board of Health. As an appointed member of the Conservation Commission, King needed the board's permission according to state ethics rules. He received approval.

Special one-day liquor licenses were approved for the YMCA for several upcoming charity events. These events are primarily for the purpose of raising funds to help subsidize camping tuition for children with financial hardship.

The selectmen voted approval for the MS Bike Charity Ride to move through six miles of Mattapoissett on June 21, which also received an affirmative response from Police Chief Mary Lyons.

Town Clerk Catherine Hueberger came before the board to discuss the possibility of extending voting hours during local elections. Both she and Gagne had heard from the public that opening the polls at 8:00 am for local elections would be beneficial. She estimated the increased expense at $400. The selectmen tabled the decision until the September meeting to give them ample opportunity to discuss the time change with Old Hammondtown School's administration.

Allen Decker of the Buzzards Bay Coalition met with the board to discuss the approval of a conservation restriction on town property adjacent to Nasketucket Reservation. He said that the sale of the conservation restriction to the state for $180,000 will help the town with the purchase price for the 27 acres site. Decker said that ultimately it is hoped that this parcel – along with the larger reservation – will tie into the bike path, giving greater and easier access to this natural recreational area.

Selectman Paul Silva thanked the coalition through Decker for "The Bogs" recreational area saying it is a wonderful location for people to allow their dogs to run off leash.

The board also voted on annual reappointments of those sitting on numerous boards and commissions doing the work of the town mostly on a voluntary basis. A list of those appointments is available at the selectmen's office.

On the subject of voluntarism, the Selectmen are seeking to fill several open seats on the Historical Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals. When asked what sort of qualification the board would be looking for, particularly for the open seats on the ZBA, Silva said, "...dedicated people, willing to participate at meetings on a regular basis, people who care about the community..." He indicated that it would be 'on the job training,' humorously interjecting "like being a Selectman."

Earlier in the evening and prior to the beginning of the meeting, Melody Pacheco, Secretary to the Board of Selectmen, said that around 4:00 pm the Town Hall's computer network system was attacked by a virus that had inadvertently been introduced into the system via an encrypted email from one of the town's banking partners. At this writing, resolution of this problem remains unknown.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen is July 15 at 7:00 pm in Town Hall.

planning. The purpose of the CIPC is to anticipate future town expenses.

During its March 18 meeting, the committee extended the planning window from five years to ten years. The CIPC plans to schedule meetings with the various department heads and committee chairmen and make site visits.

The request is for each department and committee to map out the foreseeable capital projects that fall within this ten-year window and possibly identify projects that are outside the ten-year window.

Department and committee heads have already submitted their projections for the next five years.

Looking beyond 2015, some of the projections show a new roof on the Atlantis Drive facility in FY 2023 for $150,000. Other items include $1,000,000 in FY 2019 for construction of a new Department of Public Works complex, $32,000 for replacement of an HVAC unit at the Marion Natural History Museum, and $50,000 for well field exploration.

Within the five-year window, projections include $40,000 for a one-ton 4x4 with a plow, $150,000 for a design of a new Department of Public Works complex, $100,000 for a six-wheel dump truck with plow, and $5,071,000 for Phase 1B Drainage, Sewer, and Paving in the village.

All future proposed projects are subject to town approval at the spring and fall town meetings.

Proposed projects that have no date attached and could happen beyond the ten-year window include $5,000,000 for the Town House project, which has yet to be determined. Other projects include $950,000 for a fire station upgrade and $500,000 for a Council on Aging Senior Center.

Other items discussed at the meeting included gathering information on past projects approved at town meetings and whether there were any projects still outstanding with funds in escrow.

"We would like to know if there are any outstanding items from the May 2013 Town Meeting and prior years ... what has not been spent," said board member Carol Sans.

"What is voted at town meeting ... those monies cannot be spent on anything other than what the voters approved," said Chairman Norm Hills.

The board did not determine the date of their

Board Debates Its Own Authority

Rochester Planning Board

By Jean Perry

Discussion over revisions to the town subdivision rules and regulations took a turn toward the hypothetical when Rochester Planning Board member Ben Bailey questioned the board's right to dictate precisely where someone could build a house on his/her property.

The speculative scenario had to do particularly with any landowner who would want to build a house in the middle of a field, which Chairman Arnold Johnson said the board could deny if it so chose.

"I don't know why a person with a piece of property can't build a house [in a field]," said Bailey.

Johnson referred to a survey that Rochester residents filled out some time ago pertaining to the development of Rochester.

"They gave quite detailed answers," said board member Susan Teal. "They wanted to see Rochester grow, but they didn't want to have it in their faces." She added that the trend is to build farther in the woods, out of view from the road.

"If it's a violation of property rights, it's a violation of property rights," stated Bailey.

Johnson said it equates to the board simply asking the owner to submit details on the natural features on the property. When Bailey asked if there was a by-law regulating this matter, Johnson told him yes.

Bailey appeared physically appalled and called the by-law "an egregious violation of people's property rights."

"Personally, I think it's a good by-law," Johnson said after explaining that the board regulates the placement of the structure on the lot, and the property owner must submit the plan for approval. "This town is known for its stone walls, its fields," said Johnson.

"But you don't pay taxes on those things," replied Bailey.

Johnson told Bailey he would lose that argument because although the board can place restrictions on the location of the house, one could still build a house on the property.

"We're not saying you can't put a house on the lot," said Johnson. "We're not stopping them from building, Ben, there's a difference." Johnson continued, essentially explaining the difference between prohibiting and regulating.

Bailey thought the board's right to decide which fields or which trees were worth saving sounded arbitrary.

"The people who want these things (protected views) aren't the people who own this (hypothetical) property and pay the taxes on the property," said Bailey. He likened the situation to wanting a winning lottery ticket and then taking one from another person's pocket.

"We're not taking anyone's property away from them," said Johnson. "We're controlling how it looks." Johnson called the by-law "a planning tool."

"It's just like asking them to plot wetlands," said Johnson.

The board recommended a number of other additions and omissions to the ongoing revisions to the subdivision rules and regulations, including some items on the site plan review application.

In other matters, the board did not end up sending a letter to Shawmut Associates, Inc. regarding their dwindling escrow account and requesting them to add additional funds to cover the costs of future inspections. The day after the May 27 meeting, Shawmut Associates voluntarily sent a check to the Planning Department to cover the cost of the outstanding invoice for an engineering inspection, and Board Administrator Patrice LaForest said Shawmut Associates would also be sending another $2,250 to cover the estimated cost of one further inspection.

The two items on the agenda for Harris Real Estate Boston, LLC to rescind a Form C Subdivision Approval, and also an application for an Approval not Required,

ConCom Says Planning Owns Drainage

Mattapoisett Conservation Commission

By Marilou Newell

Once again, it was late into the evening's agenda when Mattapoisett's Conservation Commission tackled the issue of drainage problems at two residential subdivisions, Appaloosa Lane and Brandt Point Village.

Chairman Peter Newton made it clear that Planning Boards were ultimately responsible for the approval and oversight of engineered drainage systems. These boards can call for "as-built" plans post-construction to ensure

Mystery novels in familiar local settings for summer reading

Clement R Beaulieu of Fairhaven presents two historical mystery novels.

His first mystery novel, Bad Lucky Number, published in 2011, is set in the Southcoast area of MA, circa 1930, during Prohibition and the Great Depression.

The newly released Round Corners follows some of the same characters ten years later, circa 1940, and the era of World War II.

that a project was completed as planned and approved.

As a point of clarity, however, he also said that in so far as those systems involve protected wetlands, then ConCom would have some jurisdictional oversight. Newton pointed out that the Conservation Commission's primary responsible was to ensure that the wetlands protection act was followed. Further, any 'conditions' imposed by the commission on projects for which they have jurisdiction, oversight of the conditions fell to ConCom. But regarding the enforcement of engineered plans, Newton said the Planning Board was in the driver's seat.

Regarding the two sub-divisions that continue to bring out abutters and neighbors, the commission reviewed their current status.

Brandt Point Village recently lost its bid with the Planning Board to increase the total number of bedrooms at the 41-unit site. The developer's representatives had been before ConCom on several occasions regarding a remediation area that had not been completed and to share with the commission their plan for a 'Bio-Clear' septic system. The developer planned to install this state-of-the-art sanitation system if they received approval to increase the total number of bedrooms at the sub-division. Failing that, the future of the project is presently unknown. ConCom member Bob Rogers said, "....we now have an unmotivated developer..."

Although the remediation area is still part of the developer's responsibility, Rogers felt that if they didn't move forward with completion of the site as originally approved, there wasn't much the commission could do to enforce the 'condition.' As for the drainage issues at the site, Highway Superintendent Barry Denham had told both the Planning Board and ConCom that a brook contiguous to the sub-division and to Gary Lane is the responsibility of the developer for the 500 feet on his site. The balance of the brook passes through private lands. Now that the developer's project is up in the air, plans for clearing the brook and making it more efficient as part of the sub-division drainage system is also unclear. Rogers and Denham both expressed serious concerns for the homeowners who have already purchased homes at the site and to whom the responsibility for a very large private septic system may fall.

division, was also discussed. ConCom had asked that Brian Grady of GAF Engineering come before them to bring them up to date on drainage construction at the site. However, Grady had no new news to share, stating that he had been out of town and unable to find out what work the contractor was undertaking at the request of the developer, Michael Solimando.

Grady was fully aware of the ongoing problem with drainage basins retaining water and thus creating large stagnant pools ripe with mosquito breeding, but due to the standing water, investigating the basins themselves was impossible.

Denham told the commission that the Planning Board was holding a public hearing on the sub-division on June 16. The public notice for that hearing reads in part, "...the Mattapoisett Planning Board will hold a Public Hearing on Monday, June 16 at 7 pm in Town Hall ... to consider modification, amendment or rescission of a Form C approval issued to Michael Solimando for sub-division of land on Appaloosa Lane located off River Road..." (The full hearing notice can be found at www.mattapoisett.net on the Planning Board page.)

Patricia Apperson, 21 River Road, and Brian Cook, 11 River Road were both in attendance to plead for some relief from what has become an unrelenting drainage problem on their properties. Apperson asked several times why ConCom couldn't do more to make the developer fix the drainage problems, but again heard that the Planning Board held the responsibility. After lengthy discussion, several to-does were given to Grady: 1) Obtain mosquito pellets from the board of health for the standing water, 2) Visit the site with Conservation Agent Liz Leidhold and Director of Inspectional Services Andy Bobola to determine if soil erosion is entering wetlands or leaving the site, and 3) Invite Solimando to attend the next ConCom meeting to present the most recent drainage plan that was approved by the Planning Board. In the end, the abutters heard that the developer had the ultimate responsibility to fix problems at the site.

Earlier in the evening, Wyandotte Farm, Mr. and Mrs. Michael King, 88 Marion Road received a Negative 2 determination and will be able to move forward with plans to build a "hugelkultur," aka hoogle culture raised composite bed. This will allow the farm to compost chicken processing by-products and waste while also growing plants in raised composted beds.

Mark Burbine, 5 Avenue B, received a Negative 2 determine for the construction of a small kitchen addition in a flood zone. Edward Ruel, 2 Beach Street, also received a negative determination for the expansion of a deck. And, Anne Donnelon, 20 Highland Avenue, received a negative determination for the construction of a concrete driveway to replace crushed seashells.

The continued hearing for Blue Wave LLC for the construction of a solar farm off Crystal Spring Road moved closer to a reality. Rick Charon, engineer, came before ConCom noting that he had met with the town's peer review consultant, Gary James, and several of James' concerns regarding impervious drainage conditions have been resolved. Newton and ConCom member Marylou Kelliher shared the results of their site visit to the Rochester solar farm currently suffering from severe erosion. Charon said that without proper management of the soils prior to the establishment of planted grasses, erosion could result. He detailed that the types of soil at the Crystal Spring site were different from the sandy soils at the Rochester location and that part of Blue Wave's plans would be erosion mitigation planning.

Drainage issues along Crystal Spring Road were once again discussed with Peter Wolski, 4 Crystal Spring Road, again airing his concerns along with questions regarding water shed into the aquifer. Charon countered that the drainage issues along this roadway were of a long-standing nature and not a result of run off from the proposed solar field and that the area is not part of the aquifer. Wolski wanted to know who was going to be around to contact if something goes wrong with the drainage system. Charon said that Blue Wave was ultimately responsible. Wolski asked the commission and all boards to please be conservative when reviewing this project. Blue Wave's hearing was continued until June 23.

The site for the future Southcoast Farms, 11 and 13 Industrial Drive, cleared a small hurdle when Bob Field of Field Engineering told ConCom that he had receive clearance from state fish and wildlife agencies to remove existing stock piles of soils within a 100-foot buffer zone to a bordering vegetate wetland. The project was allowed to move forward with standard conditions.

Frank Linhares, 16 Holly Hollow Lane, received a certificate of compliance, as did Tim Ray, 1 Pine Wood Way, and Greg Downey, Mattapoisett Neck Road.

Committee Embraces New PARCC Assessment

Marion School Committee

By Jean Perry

The Marion School Committee said good-bye to the old pencil and paper MCAS (Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System) and hello to the new online PARCC (Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers) exam during its June 5 meeting.

Just as Rochester had done the night before, Marion chose to embrace the PARCC exam after a pilot of the exam at Sippican School and an informative presentation by Superintendent Doug White, who advocated for replacing MCAS with PARCC before the State stops using MCAS on its own accord in 2015. The Board of Education granted local school committees the choice to decide between the two exams.

"Whether it be a PARCC school or an MCAS school," said White, "we can't be both." White added that if Marion decided to go with PARCC, the State would back the change by assisting with technology infrastructure support and professional development. The decision must be made by October 1, and White said the sooner the committee decided, the better.

"In 2016, [MCAS] will no longer be a viable test in grades three through six," said White; however, for the time being, MCAS will remain a graduation requirement, and the science MCAS will also remain the same, for now.

Sippican School Principal Lyn Rivet said a select group of students who took the pilot PARCC test liked it more than MCAS because it was a shorter exam, but they had frustrations with the manipulation of the technology.

As Rivet explained, some students had difficulty navigating the exam, like finding the math calculator that the website provides for the test. Students who also went back to alter their open response questions were disconcerted when, after pressing the delete button, their entire open response questions were erased.

"Overall, the response ... was that they were excited about being able to take it on the computer," said Rivet. However, she added, "They would have felt more assured ... if there had been some sort of practice involved."

There are other benefits to adopting PARCC now before the State decides which exam they will issue in 2016, as White explained.

Students would get acclimated earlier to the online testing, and there is no risk to the school's Level 1 status, since 2015 test results would not count against the school.

"What I see is an opportunity for our kids to be exposed to and have the opportunity to try this test," said White.

But as School Committee member Christine Winters pointed out, there is no guarantee that the State will choose to continue using PARCC in 2016, so why adopt it now?

"But MCAS will never be here again," said White. "Some other online test will be used in 2016 ... MCAS is no longer a test that is aligned to the Common Core."

Chairman Joseph Scott concurred, saying, "Experience is going to benefit us no matter what the (future online) test is."

Assistant Superintendent Elise Frangos added another benefit to adopting the online test, describing the labor-intensive process of preparing the MCAS testing materials, sharpening pencils, counting test packets, and checking seals and codes.

"It is truly a gigantic labor," said Frangos. "And if we could go to this (online) modality, it would be amazing."

Winters pointed out that Sippican students have already engaged in the Galileo testing online, so what would be the added value in adopting PARCC?

"It equates to everything," said Scott, "Practice, practice, practice..."

School Committee member Christine Marcolini saw the benefit of adding "time on learning" by doing away with MCAS, which takes place over the course of the entire day, while PARCC is just about 90 minutes long.

"Also, the amount of staff that has to be covering all that day long..." said Marcolini.

All committee members voted in favor of PARCC, with Winters abstaining from voting.

In other matters, the committee approved the plans for the new Sippican School playground, a $9,000 project that will be completely paid for by donations and private funding with no cost to taxpayers.

Physical education teacher Joe Resmini presented the plans that now include a black top area on which older students could play.

"Older kids have nowhere to play basketball or four square," said Resmini. "The human body needs movement and it needs movement all throughout the day." He said students' brains become more focused and active, resulting in better learners. "It would definitely reduce the amount of behavior problems at recess," added Resmini.

The committee also approved keeping Whaling City Transportation as the Town's special education transportation, and they approved the YMCA lease for use of the Sippican School facilities.

The committee approved the School Improvement Plan developed in part by the Sippican School Council, as well as Frangos' Professional Development Plan.

The committee welcomed new committee member Kate Houdelette, and said farewell to Director of Student Services Theresa Hamm, who is retiring at the end of the school year after over 20 years of service in the Old Rochester Regional District.

Mattapoisett School Committee

By Jean Perry

Mattapoisett School Committee members are celebrating the approval of an additional second grade teacher at Center School after receiving the go-ahead from the Town to hire a new teacher and pay for the health insurance with extra funds left over from the school fiscal 2014 budget.

The position will be for one year only, in order to alleviate the larger-sized first-grade classes transitioning into the second grade, which currently has just three teachers.

After Superintendent Doug White's announcement that the town administrator agreed to the position as long as the Town did not have to contribute to the new hire's health insurance, the committee eagerly approved the position on June 9.

"A celebration is in order I think," said Chairman James Higgins.

Higgins had been advocating for an additional second grade teacher for months as the committee formulated its FY15 budget with hope that there would be room for another teacher.

"Thank God," Principal Rose Bowman silently mouthed to some teachers in attendance across the room.

Also during the meeting, it is three down and one to go for individual Tri-Town districts adopting the new online PARCC (Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers) assessment, doing away with the old pencil and paper MCAS (Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System).

White repeated the same PARCC presentation that he had given twice before to the two other towns, and which he will also present to the Old Rochester Regional District School Committee later in the week.

Students at Old Hammondtown took a pilot pen and pencil version of PARCC, and White said, although it was not the online version, students had some positive feedback pertaining to the style of and questions asked on the test.

Associate Principal Charles Egan said the shorter testing time took some of the pressure off of the students, since the MCAS testing is an all-day event, while PARCC has a much shorter testing time.

If students take PARCC instead of MCAS in 2015, not only will students get used to taking the exam online, but the results will also not count against the school should the results of the tests be less than favorable.

"PARCC could end up not being the assessment (in 2016)," said White, "but it will be a 'next generation' type assessment."

The State has given local school committees the authority to choose which test to use, but there cannot be a combination of the two. It is either PARCC, or MCAS and, by 2016, MCAS will disappear and another online assessment, yet to be determined, will take its place.

In other news, committee member James Muse said a parent approached him over concerns that the Center School playground is not fenced-in, and Muse thought the committee should take action to fence it in.

Facilities Director Gene Jones said the playground was in compliance with State regulations, since the playground equipment area did not abut a public way or waterway.

"It's a free-flowing thing," said Higgins. "It never felt like an unsafe place to be." He added, "We should proceed pretty slowly ... I kind of like the way it looks there."

In the end, the committee decided to investigate the possibility of installing a fence, but Higgins emphasized that it was not an approval of the fence, just an approval to investigate.

White announced the new associate principal for Mattapoisett – Old Hammondtown fourth-grade teacher Kevin Tavares – will assume the position as of the next school year. Bowman will remain Head Principal, and the two will float between the two elementary schools.

In other business, the committee approved the School Improvement Plan, as well as Assistant Superintendent Dr. Elise Frangos' Professional Development Plan.

This was the final School Committee meeting of the school year.

Saccone Wins All-State Title as Year Wraps Up

ORR Sports Update

By Michael Kassabian

Here is a look at the tenth and final week of scheduled games for ORR spring athletics.

Baseball: This year has been one of the strongest years for baseball in recent ORR history, thanks to a strong team and a tenacity to fight back. The Bulldogs exhibited these qualities in the Division 3 South quarterfinal against Fairhaven, where they won 6-1 in an exciting game. Fairhaven got off to a quick 1-0 lead in the first inning, and for a moment, it looked as if the Bulldogs were faltering. However, thanks to some explosive batting and key pitching by Ryan Plunkett, the Bulldogs were able to go on a 6-0 run to defeat Fairhaven for the third time this season. Austin Salkind and Tyler Zell each recorded two hits on the win, while five other Bulldogs added solo hits. Plunkett successfully pitched the Bulldogs out of some tight jams to secure the win. However, the boys were not able to advance any further in the tournament, as they suffered a tough 13-3 loss to second-seeded Bellingham in the semifinal round. Though their season may be over, the Bulldogs showed that the baseball program at ORR has improved and will be a threat in the conference and the state for years to come.

Boys' Track: The highlight of this week for ORR athletics was junior track star Kevin Saccone, who won his first All-State title in the long jump with a new school record of 22' ¾". Saccone, who was originally seeded tenth in the event, jumped ahead with a monster leap to claim the title of the best long-jumper in the state of Massachusetts. Besides Saccone, ORR athletes had a great day at the annual All-State Meet. Mike Wyman finished off his incredible high-school career with a narrow second place finish in the 800-meter, lowering his own school record to 1:53. Colin Knapton closed his impressive track doubles players Maxx Wolski and Doug Blaise, but was not able to overcome Cohasset's depth to move on in the tournament. Regardless, the boys have had a great season, complete with a SCC Championship and an impressive tournament run.

This year has been one of the most successful athletic years in ORR history. Old Rochester earned nine conference championships this year, five of them coming from spring sports. This conference domination led the Bulldogs to collect their fourth-straight overall conference championship, which is determined by the number of conference championships and records of each school in the SCC. Credit must be given to the strong coaching staffs and talented teams who have dedicated hours upon hours to strive to be the best. It has been a pleasure reporting for the ORR sports teams this year, and hopefully ORR continues a strong showing in the SCC and state in the years to come.

Below are the overall spring team records, followed by the conference records in wins, losses, and ties as of June 7.

MOVIE REVIEW

Love Story

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

The Fault in Our Stars*. Starring Shailene Woodley and Ansel Elgort. Directed by Josh Boone. Running time: 125 minutes. MPAA rating: PG-13.

Every young generation deserves its own great love story. But does The Fault in Our Stars qualify? I can't truly be the judge of its greatness; that call isn't mine to make. (My generation has Say Anything and the Before trilogy, and I can imagine the generation before mine taking issue with that.) I am no longer a teenager, the ideal age at which to experience doomed, star-crossed love — in fiction, mind you, not in life — for the first time. Really, I can only convey to what extent the movie successfully got around my defenses and spoke directly to my inner romantic teenager. Like John Green's mega-popular 2012 novel, on which it's faithfully based, The Fault in Our Stars flatters its audience for its hipness to the usual tragic narrative. But when it comes time to push the time-honored emotional buttons, damn, the movie works those buttons, pounds them. Even my inner teenager was offended.

The Fault in Our Stars is two-thirds of a graceful romance. The self-deprecating, sardonic teenager Hazel (Shailene Woodley), who narrates, barely holds cancer at bay with experimental drugs and an oxygen tank. At a rather pitiful support group — the movie is rather cruel about the basement-dwelling, Jesus-loving goof with testicular cancer who runs the group — Hazel meets Augustus (Ansel Elgort), an equally sardonic kid who lost his leg to cancer. They forge a bond out of shared gallows humor; Augustus instinctively senses that Hazel has no time for uplifting bromides, and the two fall with relief into easy chat. They're smart, well-read teens — Augustus favors adventure paperbacks, though, while Hazel idolizes a cancer-kid novel written by a recluse (Willem Dafoe) who hasn't published anything since.

The recluse's novel ends in mid-sentence, and Hazel wants to know what happens after it ends, which is to say she wants to know what happens after she ends. Does the fictional cancer girl's family go on and find some sort of happiness? Hazel worries about her mom (Laura Dern), worries that too much of her is tied up in being Hazel's mother and that she'll be left with nothing once Hazel goes. I felt my eyes sting a couple of times, and Laura Dern owned both of those moments; just the way she runs into Hazel's room, expecting a disaster, when Hazel has merely exclaimed about a surprising email, is heartbreaking. Dern does a huge amount with very little here; it's heroically open work from a great actress.

The plot takes the two kids to Amsterdam, where Dafoe's bitter alcoholic writer hides in a clutter of ignored fan mail and refuses to give Hazel an answer. In my mind, this is the most sensible thing he can do, because there isn't an answer, but his harshness drives the couple out of his flat and into the Anne Frank house, where they have their first kiss while other tourists applaud. This sort of self-absorption is easily forgiven among (a) the dying and (b) the young, and Hazel and Augustus are both. It's also an indication that Hazel may not be the most reliable narrator.

The Fault in Our Stars becomes aggressively, almost brutally manipulative in its final stretch. It's an old-school weepie, all right, and the usual weepers will weep loudly, as they did at my screening. I stayed dry, ticking off all the bullet points. The purest love, the movie says, is not long for this life; true love can only spark between two people who won't live long enough to get sick of each other (or to have a kid with cancer and to watch their married lives become about medical bills and wolf-hour hospital runs). As long as it stays with the two kids who have suffered far too much to be anything but honest around each other, the movie is fine. But then there's middle-of-the-night melodrama and a fake funeral and a real funeral — so many attempts to raise a lump in the throat that even the most forgiving viewer may feel a bit throttled. The movie, like the book, may gather a patina of greatness for those who look back on it fondly once safely out of their teens. But both the movie and the book should have had the courage to end mid-sentence.

Author Talk with Derek DeCosta

Join us at the Elizabeth Taber Library on Thursday,
June 19 at 6:30 pm for a special program featuring Derek DeCosta of Mattapoisett. He is the author of *The Moonlight
King*, a modern day true story of slavery to freedom.

Derek DeCosta was born Yoon Sang Kyun from a tiny village in South Korea where he lived a privileged and happy life. After his mysterious adoption into slavery and abuse, he finds his true purpose as an educator and motivator to thousands of students within his wellness programs. He is currently training students of all backgrounds, teaching group fitness classes, and running a local cable fitness show while doing guest appearances on television and radio programs on the topics of health and fitness.

There will be a lively conversation and book signing with Mr. DeCosta. Books will be available for purchase at the event. For more information, please call the ETL at 508-748-1252.

Rochester Historical Society Meeting

June's Historical Society meeting will be a walk down memory lane remembering all the fun places in Rochester that are no longer there. It takes place on Wednesday, June 18 at 7:00 pm at the East Rochester Church/Museum, 355 County Rd. If you have any pictures of these or any other places where Rochesterites spent their time or any other activity such as horse pulls,
softball games, dances, and beaches, please bring them.
All are welcome and refreshments will follow.

Academic Achievements

Bridgewater State University announces that Anne Smith of Mattapoisett, a senior in the Commonwealth Honors Program, is one of 36 undergraduates to receive the Adrian Tinsley Program Summer Research Grant. The grant is a $4,000 stipend sustaining 10 weeks of intensive research under the supervision of a faculty mentor. For her ATP grant, Smith will investigate the utility of young adult literature as gateway reads to canon texts in the Massachusetts Curriculum Framework by creating a unit plan that uses literature circles in the high school English classroom. The ATP grant is the first semester of Smith's honors thesis for her bachelor's degree in English and Secondary Education.

Bridgewater State University also announces that Smith received the following three scholarships: The Dr. Wallace L. Anderson Scholarship is presented to a junior in the humanities and creative arts who has an excellent academic record (GPA over 3.0) and who has shown evidence of artistic or literary ability or has demonstrated leadership in the academic major. The Professor Thomas M. and Anne M. Curley English Scholarship was established in 2001 to benefit a student who majors or minors in English and demonstrates excellence in English studies. The Class of 1953 Scholarship Fund in Memory of J. Leo Mulready benefits a full-time student enrolled in the College of Education and Allied Studies who demonstrates academic achievement (2.5 GPA or higher) and a desire to become a teacher. Smith was also named to the Dean's List.

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Try using that Aries charm to warm up the usual set of workplace naysayers, and then back it up with a solid block of facts and figures to sell your idea to your colleagues.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) While nothing can deter a determined Bovine from following a course you believe in, it helps to have some supporting data and statements by trusted colleagues to make your case.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Take advantage of new information that could help make your career transition easier. The weekend is a good time to re-establish relationships with people you haven't seen in a while.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Personal matters demand your attention as once-stable situations begin to shift. Quick action to shore things up is called for in order to avoid more problems down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Although your financial picture begins to brighten, "thrift" and "caution" are still the watchwords for fiscally astute Leos and Leonas to live by. Expect news about a family matter.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Before you try to blame a colleague for a workplace problem, make sure you have the proof to back you up. Make some quiet inquiries on your own to try to solicit more information.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Trying to cheer up a depressed friend or downcast family member can be difficult. But keep at it, and your efforts should soon pay off in ways you might have never expected.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Taking a new look at an old and frequently recurring problem might lead you to consider making some surprising changes in the way you had been handling it up till now.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Despite what the naysayers might say, setting your sights on a new goal could be one of the smartest things the typically sagacious Sagittarian has done in a long time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Rebuilding an unraveling relationship won't be easy. But you can do it, if you really want to. Just remember to keep the lines of communication open between the two of you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new friendship could develop into a close relationship. Meanwhile, reassure an old friend who might be feeling neglected that he or she is still an important part of your life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might be feeling that you're still in over your head as you continue trying to adjust to your new situation. But the pressures ease by week's end, giving you time to come up for air.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for sensing the feelings of others. You might consider a career in some aspect of counseling.

World Blood Donor Day

Mattapoisett resident and reigning Miss New Bedford, Jillian Zucco, will be hosting a blood drive on World Blood Donor Day on Saturday, June 14.

Teaming up with Southcoast Health and the New Bedford Bay Sox, the 21 year-old nursing student will be at the Paul Walsh Field in New Bedford with the Southcoast Blood Donor Van from 12:30 to 6:30 pm, just before the start of the Bay Sox game against the Valley Blue Sox.

Blood donors must bring a photo ID and are encouraged to eat prior to donating. Each donor will receive a free pair of tickets to any New Bedford Bay Sox home game.

According to Catherine Alegria, Donor Program Coordinator for Southcoast Health, every pint that is donated to the Southcoast Blood Bank is used locally at one of their local hospitals (Charlton, St. Luke's, and Tobey) or at their Cancer Centers in Fall River and Fairhaven.

"The need is definitely great. Donations are significantly decreased this year due to the snowy winter

June Programs at Plumb Library

On Monday, June 23 at 3:30 pm, kick off the 2014 Fizz Boom Read! Summer Reading Program with Plumb Library and Mike the Bubble Man! Mike brings magic and science to the stage with this interactive 45-minute indoor show about bubbles! Through music, choreography, and comedy, bubbles – in all different shapes and sizes – come alive, sparking imagination and wonder. Exploring science through bubbles creates an entertaining learning environment that introduces shapes, color, and chemistry. A love for bubbles is never outgrown – especially when there's a chance to see the world from inside of one!

The show will be held at First Congregational Church, 11 Constitution Way, Rochester. No registration required. Call 508-763-8600 or email info@plumblibrary.com for more information. This program is sponsored by the Rochester Cultural Council.

TriTOWN HAPPENINGS

One of the highlights of the third-grade school year, students dressed up as famous Americans and treated senior citizens from the Council on Aging to a senior citizen appreciation breakfast the morning of June 6. The third-graders sang patriotic songs like the Star-Spangled Banner and My Country 'Tis of Thee, dressed as the American figure of their choice. After the performance, the students mingled with their guests, introducing themselves as their character and stating facts about their history and lives. Photos by Jean Perry. Story on page 3.

Friday morning we caught some first-graders in the middle of a hula-hoop relay on the grounds of Sippican School. Holding hands and cheering each other on, the kids twisted and turned themselves through the hoops and the first team to get their hoop to travel down and up the line again won the relay. Can you guess which team won? Photos by Jean Perry

"Just the Facts," the nonfiction book discussion group, will be reading One Perfect Day: The Selling of the American Wedding, by Rebecca Mead. Why has the American wedding become an outlandishly extravagant, very expensive, and overwhelmingly demanding production? Who decided that brides and grooms must observe tradition while at the same time using the wedding as a vehicle for expressing their personal style? What does a wedding tell us about how Americans consume, relate, and live today? One Perfect Day mixes investigative journalism and social commentary to explore the workings of the wedding industry, an industry that has every interest in ensuring that the American wedding becomes more lavish and complex. We will discuss this book on Thursday, June 19 at 6:30 pm. Copies are available at the desk.

Brooks. Fans of Louisa May Alcott's Little Women will remember that Father March is absent for most of the first half of the book. We know he was in Washington, DC ministering to the troops, but what is the whole story? In Brooks' book, we get the story of Mr. March, his early career as a traveling salesman to his eventual ministry, and his illness that brings his wife, Marmee, to Washington from Concord, MA. Geraldine Brooks is a favorite of the Café Parlez group, and this book will not disappoint. We will discuss it on Thursday, June 26 at 6:30 pm. Books are available at the desk, or bring your own copy.

Register now for Fizz, Boom, Read!, the 2014 Summer Reading Program. This is a free, family-oriented program, which involves children from ages 3 and up and their parents. Registration is required, but is done online. Go to www.readsinma.org/rochester to register and to log your times after June 18. The goal of this program is to encourage families to read for pleasure and keep track of their reading online. Weekly check-ins with the library earn kids free books and a surprise. Random drawings occur all summer for all age groups that are logging their hours. All kids that read at least 10 hours will be awarded a special prize at the end of the program. Separate programs are available for Teens/Tweens and for adults, with weekly prize drawings. Call or email the library for more information.

that it has acquired 22 acres of woodland and salt marsh along Mattapoisett Neck Road from Jeanne and Gregory Downey of Mattapoisett. The property lies between parcels of land that were previously protected by the Mattapoisett Land Trust as well as the Wildlands Trust of Duxbury, MA. Most importantly, the land lies entirely within an area that the Commonwealth's Natural Heritage & Endangered Species Program BioMap2 report (2012) describes both as "Core Habitat" and "Critical Natural Landscape," meaning that it is among the most important areas to preserve for the protection of rare and threatened species.

In addition to private contributions, the acquisition was only made possible through a grant of $75,000 from the North American Wetlands Conservation Act administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and obtained through the assistance and cooperation of the Buzzards Bay Coalition, the Wildlands Trust, as well as the Buzzards Bay National Estuary Program. Additional funding came from foundation sources including the Lee L. and Judith E. Selwyn Foundation, the Fields Pond Foundation and the Sheehan Family Foundation. Fund-raising efforts to retire the $25,000 principal remaining on a loan that was required will continue through the summer. Individuals interested in contributing can donate to the Land Trust through its website at www.mattlandtrust.org or by mail to P.O. Box 31 in Mattapoisett.

The MLT hopes to eventually link the property to the existing trail on the Walega-Livingstone Preserve, thereby providing a public trail access to Brandt Island Cove from Mattapoisett Neck Road. Future generations will have the opportunity to experience the natural beauty of the salt marsh and woodlands along the bay.

and he played in ORR's very first interscholastic athletic competition, when his football team defeated Dighton-Rehoboth, 14-6. A tough-as-nails left guard, Charlie was the only ORR athlete to be named to the Standard Times All-Star football team that season, and he was also a Tri-County Conference All-Star. Charlie also competed in winter track and played baseball and was named Most Valuable Athlete of the Class of '62.

Steven Heath '69: Steve Heath was one of the top multi-sport athletes in the area in the late 1960s. In football, Steve was a co-captain, a two-time Standard Times All-Star lineman, a Narragansett League All-Star, a Boston Globe All-Star, and was named to the All-Conference Team. Steve was an offensive powerhouse on the baseball team, played four years of basketball, and threw the shot put in spring track. He was named Most Valuable Athlete in the spring of his senior year. Steve went on to play football at Central Connecticut State College. Upon returning to the Tri-Town area, he coached football, umpired Little League, and was an integral member of the Mattapoisett Road Race committee. Steve was and is a leader both on and off the field.

Tom DeCosta '70: Selfless, dedicated and kind are just some of the words teammates use to describe Tom DeCosta. Tom earned 11 varsity letters during his four years at ORR. He was a standout four-year starter on the basketball team, was named team MVP his sophomore year, and was a league all-star. Playing center, he set a school record for rebounds in a single game (30). In football, Tom played end and tackle and was both a Standard Times and league all-star. In baseball, he earned four letters as a pitcher and first baseman. Tom went on to serve as a football coach for ORRHS.

Cornelia Dougall '71: At a time when organized athletic opportunities for girls were just starting to expand, Cornelia Dougall helped raise the level of girls' sports at ORR. A gifted multisport athlete, she was one of ORR's first female sports stars. Cornelia competed in track and field, volleyball, field hockey, basketball and tennis. In both field hockey and basketball, she was named MVP her sophomore, junior and senior years. Cornelia was named to the SE Mass Invitational Basketball Tournament All-Tourney Team and led her field hockey and track teams to league titles. She was named Most Valuable Female Athlete her senior year. Cornelia went on to earn her doctorate degree in clinical psychology from Antioch University.

Gretchen Hamer MacDonald '81: On her 2nd grade report card, Gretchen Hamer's teacher wrote, "Gretchen is a lovely girl. I think she is my most competitive student." Clearly Gretchen was born a competitor, as she was undoubtedly one of ORR's premier female athletes in the late 70s and early 80s, excelling in volleyball, basketball and track. A versatile athlete, Gretchen earned four varsity letters in both volleyball and basketball and three in track. Gretchen was a two-time Standard Times All-Star in all three sports. A four-year starter, she was a standout volleyball player, leading ORR to three Southeastern Mass Conference championships and to the state sectional finals twice. In basketball, Gretchen's teams were conference champions three times and made three trips to the sectional finals. In track, she shattered the school record in the javelin, excelled in the mile, and was named team MVP.

Peter Borsari '82: Peter Borsari was one of those most dominant football players in the area in the early 1980s. A four-year starter at offensive tackle and defensive end, Peter was a physical force on the gridiron. He was named a Standard Times All-Star twice, an All Eastern Mass All-Star, a Boston Globe All-Star, and was selected to play in the prestigious Shriners All-Star game in 1981. Peter also ran track at ORR. Peter went on to play football at UMass Amherst on a scholarship.

The 1962 Cross Country Team: The 1962 Cross Country team has the great distinction of bringing the first state championship to Old Rochester Regional High School. Coached by Norm Fuller, the 1962 Cross Country team captured the Class F State Championship, which was all the more remarkable considering it was only ORRHS's second year in existence. Five of the ORR runners who ran in the state championship meet placed in the top 20 among well over 100 runners. Congratulations to Coach Fuller and his harriers of 1962.

Coach Jim Hubbard: Sports and education have defined Coach Jim Hubbard's life. Jim coached spring and winter track, baseball and football at ORR in the 60s and 70s. Jim coached his spring track teams to three Narragansett League titles, two South Coast Conference titles, and the 1967 Class D State Relay championship. He also served as ORR's Athletic Director from 1975-

1980, during which time he oversaw 10 sports teams each for boys and girls and served on several MIAA subcommittees. Jim earned a bachelor's and a master's degree in education at Bridgewater State College, where he was a three sport athlete and later inducted into BSC's athletic hall of fame. He also had a long and distinguished career with the Cape Cod Baseball League as player, coach and manager of several teams, and was inducted into the CCBL Hall of Fame in 2006.

Andy Mendes: As a trainer during the late 1960s and 1970s, Andy Mendes' contribution to the athletes and students of ORR was significant. But Andy was so much more than a trainer. He was instrumental in positively molding the futures of the student body whether their needs were academic, athletic, or social/emotional. He was the consummate go-to guy whenever a kid needed help. Always a classy guy and a great role model, his delicious sense of humor was appreciated by students and faculty alike. The countless unpaid hours he spent individually helping student athletes hone their skills and improve their self esteem had an immeasurable impact on so many individuals. The ORR Athletic Hall of Fame is proud to honor Andy Mendes for his significant contributions to ORR athletics.

event, but some teams also hold creative fundraisers at their campsites during Relay. The dollars raised through Relay For Life events help to fund the American Cancer Society's vital cancer research, education, advocacy, and patient service programs to defeat this disease.

Last year, the Relay For Life of Tri-Town was able to raise more than $40,000 and included many teams made up of family, friends, cancer survivors, and those passionate in the fight against cancer.

Are you a cancer survivor? We would love to honor you at our Survivors' dinner being held on June 13 at 5:00 pm at Old Rochester Regional High School in Mattapoisett.

Entertainment will be provided by the ORR Drama club. The dinner is free, catered by On The Go, and includes a Survivors T-shirt. Your caregiver is also welcome.

Join us at 6:00 pm for the opening ceremonies where survivors and caregivers kick off the night with the first lap around the track.

Have you lost a loved one to cancer? Come to our Luminaria ceremony at 9:00 pm on June 13 where we honor the ones we have lost during a beautiful candlelight ceremony.

If you would like to participate or join us for the Survivors' dinner, please contact Kelsey Newton, American Cancer Society at 508-897-4323; Pam Houston, Tri-Town Co-Chair at 508-922-4024; MaryBeth Meunier Tripp, Survivor Chair at 508-991-9870; or sign up on our web site: www.relayforlife.org/tritownMA.

I Found the Aardvark!

Each week, hidden somewhere in the pages of The Wanderer is a tiny drawing of an aardvark. The little guy you are looking for looks exactly like the one pictured above (but don't put down this page as your answer, there's another one hidden somewhere in this issue).

Once you find the aardvark you can submit your answer online and if you are right you will get Aardvark Points! You can then use these points to get cool Aardvark Prizes!

To enter visit: www.wanderer.com and Click on I Found the Aardvark
In the June 5, 2014 issue the Aardvark was on page 16!
